DIETA

An ayahuasca dieta is a clarifying process in which our bodies and minds enter a meditative state, free of stimulants, in order to hear the whispers of the plants. It also offers us the opportunity to engage with the rhythms of nature by ingesting fresh, whole foods, reminding us that we are made of star dust.

Aside from focusing us on an organic foundation of nourishment for the human body, some of these restrictions are specific to ayahuasca in order to allow it to work with our energy without unnecessary obstacles and to engage with this work safely. Other limitations allow the icaros (medicine songs) to work their magic. Still more have to do with the particular healer treating you, as well as their lineage and unique connection to the medicine.

Through the art of eliminating consistent energies that underlie our daily lives, we are able to raise awareness of our natural processes and cultural values, allowing us to begin to shift out of our conditioned patterns and behaviors in order to enter into the mystery of this ancient healing tradition.

IN-PERSON SPECIFICATIONS

IN-PERSON

Because of the energetic space we are holding, we ask that guests wear modest attire as an extension of the dieta, particularly with regard to swimwear. Some days may be hot and we do not want anyone to be uncomfortable, but, for example, ideal swimwear for women would be one-piece bathing suits that fully cover the chest and pelvic/buttocks areas, and for men, full swimwear shorts as opposed to bikini briefs.

We recognize that various indigenous peoples have different contexts and relationships to their bodies and how they occupy them, not to mention gender norms. Because plant medicine can take us to different states of spirit, sometimes when participants are in process of being ensouled or re-embodied, we have found that unconscious conditioning from our own culture can hinder the ability for some to connect with their original child and primordial humanity. We ask that guests be mindful of their attire in this intentionally celibate and spirit-filled space.

Our intention is not to suppress anyone's self-expression but rather to neutralize the space in this complex intersection of different cultures as well as the many different processes that will arise throughout the week for our beautiful group.
