

ININ NETE MASTER PLANT DIETA PACKET

WHAT IS THE DIETA?

An ayahuasca dieta is a clarifying process in which our bodies and minds enter a meditative state, free of stimulants, in order to hear the whispers of the plants. It also offers us the opportunity to engage with the rhythms of nature by ingesting fresh, whole foods, reminding us that we are made of star dust.

Aside from focusing us on an organic foundation of nourishment for the human body, some of these restrictions are specific to ayahuasca in order to allow it to work with our energy without unnecessary obstacles and to engage with this work safely. Other limitations allow the icaros, or medicine songs, to work their magic. Still more have to do with the particular healer treating you, as well as their lineage and unique connection to the medicine.

Following strict guidelines before and after spending time with us greatly amplifies the healing of every guest and ensures connection to the world of the plants as well as safe and clean ceremonies, and these are meant as minimum requirements. We encourage you to begin as soon as you can. Through the art of eliminating consistent energies that underlie our daily lives, we are able to raise awareness of our natural processes and cultural values, allowing us to begin to shift out of our conditioned patterns and behaviors in order to enter into the mystery of this ancient healing tradition.

WHAT IS A SAMA?

A master plant dieta, or sama in Shipibo, is a deep initiatory process into the spirit world of the plants. It is a sacred process by which the onaya, healer or wisdom keeper, holds space to allow a direct connection with the dieter and particular plant spirit with which they are beginning a life-long relationship.

In this tradition, discipline, reverence, and compassion are vital in coming into relation with the plants and the cosmos. By healing ourselves and becoming more attuned to our authentic internal process, we connect more deeply with our original selves, living lives filled with purpose.

By connecting with the spirits of the plants, they are able to directly share their teachings and wisdom through infusing their healing energy to open your unique medicine. Through a dieta, these plant spirits are able to live within you, healing, teaching, and guiding you for the rest of your life, deepening your awareness of who you truly are.

IN-PERSON SPECIFICATIONS

Because of the energetic space we are holding, we ask that guests wear modest attire as an extension of the dieta, particularly with regard to swimwear. Some days may be hot and we do not want anyone to be uncomfortable, but, for example, ideal swimwear for women would be one-piece bathing suits that fully cover the chest and pelvic/buttocks areas, and for men, full swimwear shorts as opposed to bikini briefs.

We recognize that various indigenous peoples have different contexts and relationships to their bodies and how they occupy them, not to mention gender norms. Because plant medicine can take us to different states of spirit, sometimes when participants are in process of being ensouled or re-embodied, we have found that unconscious conditioning from our own culture can hinder the ability for some to connect with their original child and primordial humanity. We ask that guests be mindful of their attire in this intentionally celibate and spirit-filled space, while also acknowledging that plant medicine treatments can address intimate parts of the body.

Our intention is not to suppress anyone's self-expression but rather to neutralize the space in this complex intersection of different cultures as well as the many different processes that will arise throughout the week for our beautiful group. We trust that each person can contribute to this space with awareness and deep gratitude.
